North Texas Food Bank Dallas Farmers Market Moody Campus Under New Ownership

Food Bank will retain a lease on the space to continue administration operations in Dallas

(DALLAS)- The North Texas Food Bank has maintained their administrative offices in the heart of the Dallas Farmers Market since the spring of 2015. The building is in a prized location but has some structural issues that are costly to fix. This prompted the Food Bank leadership to look for a buyer for this space who would allow the organization to lease part of the building back after constructing a new building.

After an extensive search for the right partner, the Food Bank has signed a contract with 1100 Pearl Street LLC who has plans to convert the space into a mixed-use development. The Food Bank will lease the ground floor of the new building to use as their Moody Campus administrative offices.

“Our Food Bank has faithfully served 13-counties for many years,” said Trisha Cunningham, President and CEO of the North Texas Food Bank. “We are excited to have the opportunity to maintain the North Texas Food Bank’s Moody Campus in a new facility on the recently named Jan Pruitt Way in the vibrant Farmer’s Market area in downtown Dallas.”

The Moody Campus building is home to the majority of the NTFB External Affairs team as well as drop in workspace for other employees. Due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic, the team has worked remotely for the last few months.

Overall construction of the building is set to launch in Mid-January of 2021 and is expected to be complete by September of 2022.

“Our team is excited to work with the Food Bank as we design both their new home and as well an amazing mixed-use facility,” said Brian Bergersen from 1100 Pearl Street LLC. “The Food Bank is a critical resource for our community, and it is an honor to work with them as they set to make our region a better place.”

But the need for hunger relief is complex and in order to meet the continued need, the NTFB is always working to increase our food distribution efforts and bridge the hunger gap for children, seniors, and families in North Texas.
